Lightly sand if required.

Loosely place the unit together so you know which pieces go where and what edges to cover.

Paint all edges, the round base and any exposed sides and shelves using Sage Kaisercolour and allow to dry.

Cover the following with papers from a collection of your choice. You can choose to cover the reverse (insides) of any of the following pieces or just leave them painted.

- the outsides of the two taller edge pieces and the top shelf (base of the tray on top)
- both sides of the divider piece for the top tray
- the outsides of the two top tray edge pieces.
- the outsides of the two shorter side storage pieces.
- the outsides of the four small edge pieces
- both sides of the two small dividers for the side storage if dividing of these is required.

Ink around the edges of the individual pieces if desired.

Place the frame of the desk caddy together using the instructions on the reverse of the packaging, leaving the actual spinning piece until last. As per instructions screw the lazy susan mechanism to the round piece FIRST before adhering to the rest of the unit.

If you want to divide the two side storages, slide the small pieces into position and adhere. Leaving these pieces out will allow you to store a 6 x 6" paper pad or other wider scrapping products.

Tape or glue together the four drawers. Measure the height of these drawers and cut strips to adhere around the outside edges in your choice of paper designs.

Embellish the drawers as desired using collectables from the range and insert into the unit.

Ink the edges of some wooden bookplates and label accordingly with what you plan to store in each using alphas from the sticker sheet.

Place the divider into the tray on top if desired. Alternatively leave out and sit one of the drawers in the top, leaving one of the sides open to use as a shelf instead.

Screw in a hook, hang up your scissors and fill with all your favourite products to have on hand at your beck and call.
